[New release] sage saari compta torrentThin-film electron microprobe analysis of macroscopically and magnetically single-crystalline buried tunnel junctions. A method is described for the electron microprobe analysis of buried single-crystal tunnel junctions, which allows both the composition and the crystalline orientation to be determined. The method was developed on a buried single-crystal tunnel junction constructed from an oxidised Si substrate, a CdS layer, and a CdSe/CdS quantum dot/CdSe tunnel junction. The tunnel junction was prepared on a commercial Si wafer which was subsequently prepared for thin-film buried-oxide growth. The thin-film Si was covered by a 200 nm thick Au layer, followed by a 30 nm thick Pt layer. The device was then covered with a top Pt layer of varying thickness (0-150 nm) and the tunneling current was measured while applying an electric bias. The current-voltage characteristics of the tunnel junction were then measured and the electric bias at which 50% of the total tunneling current occurred was determined to be around -0.5 V. The final microprobe analysis of the buried junction was performed on this bias voltage and the crystallographic orientation of the tunnel junction was determined to be (110) plane vertical to the Si substrate.

The results were confirmed by X-ray diffraction measurement of the Si substrate. The crystallographic orientation of the tunnel junction could also be determined.
