A Collection Of Registry Tweaks For Win 10 ##VERIFIED## Full Version

8) if you use the radeon rx/rtx image drivers, the windows driver checks the existance of the "dxr" key in the registry hklm\software\microsoft\windows\currentversion\driverstore etworkdrivers and if it does not exist, it will just skip installing the drivers. this is not a problem, but if you do want the radeon rx/rtx image drivers, you should create a reg_dword key dxr that is set to 1. i have created a recipe for enabling this, because it's almost never needed. note that right clicking on the 'search' icon and typing in the search engine of your choice will open the page in the browser's default search engine, rather than using a google-centric interface. this is controlled with the search providers registry key, which you can change in the registry to be whatever you like. i have set mine to 'google'. there are a few tweaks for browser control panel. so when you enter browser settings and click on the "settings." or "options." button, you will notice that it doesn't even link the internet options it just opens your default browser with no option or settings. it also resets your page zoom to 100% and changes your home page. also, it will allow you to change the browsing history and keywords to a third party application. it will also let you make search engines default to google. you can also see your other preferences and preferences that don't get added by default. q: how to change the startup folder of exe installers a: when you install any program, the default folder that it creates the installer file, is the folder where the executable of that installer program is.
