- Gmail Notifier for Chrome for Ubuntu - The simple extension to keep an eye on your Gmail inbox, with a loud sound when an email arrives. KeyMACRO is a simple little extension that gives you a way to quickly and easily access your Gmail inbox from the GNOME panel. You can have it set to auto-launch when you log in, or manually launch it from your menu by right-clicking on the panel and selecting "Launch Gmail Notifier." The exact moment the mail alert sounds, a handy little Gmail Notifier icon will appear next to your user icon on the panel. Click on it to open your Gmail inbox. KeyMACRO also offers some other great features: * Mute messages or emails based on their content. * Define custom sound alerts for mail with your own music and sounds. * Disable or enable Gmail Notifier by simply checking or unchecking the checkbox in the app menu. KeyMACRO is available in the GNOME Software Center. KeyMACRO can also be installed from the Web by going to: Enterprise Manager (EZChrome) is a web-based tool that works in the same way that the standard Chrome OS command line does. However, instead of dealing with all your applications and tools through a command line interface, you can simply select and start a web-browser-based application instead. When you click on the web-browser button in the desktop switcher, you will be presented with a web-browser based console (Chrome). Once you've loaded a web-based application, you can also access all the applications and tools available through standard Chrome OS's standard desktop. Whether you're looking for something to help you manage your time, or looking for a more powerful solution than the Google Chrome's standard command line, EZChrome might be the answer you're looking for. The beauty of this tool is that it's completely web-based, so you can access it from any device with an internet connection, as long as you have Chrome installed. But there's more... EZChrome has many more features and functions, including: * Completely offline support * In-page help * Improved password manager 2edc1e01e8
