Ecuador has a population of about 15 million people as of 2009 (US Government / Bureau of the Census), which makes it one of the smallest countries in the world. Ecuador has a pretty recent history (about the 1500's), but now it has become one of the fastest growing countries in the world. Many people from Ecuador live in and migrate to the United States, which is a very common occurrence in Ecuador. The main language spoken in Ecuador is Spanish, although English is becoming more popular. According to a recent report, about 88% of the people in Ecuador speak Spanish, 15% speak Quechua, and about 2% speak French and 2% speak Portuguese....

Workflow:

1. My Nikon D610 has a lovely 21 megapixel resolution and I simply crop most smaller images to 76cm x 57cm. This means I am not scaling down the images. I have tried printing them to photo paper but this is soft and too glossy. It doesn't give me sharp enough prints.
 - I have always edited them all the way through in Aperture 3. This is very time consuming. It takes 15 - 20 minutes to load the images into the ACR editor and then take an hour to do the blending and some basic adjustments. While waiting for the process to complete these have to be kept locked as they are my main assets and I don't want them to become corrupt as they might on a different machine.

I would like to see and learn if Adobe is using its huge inventory of professional photo editing knowledge and experience to build more effective and faster photo editing software. I personally prefer GIMP and Adobe's other image processing tool, Photoshop, to compare to, but I appreciate some of the new features in Lightroom. I am always a little worried when a new software version comes out because the number of hours wasted in tech support might be in the thousands. I have experienced that with Photoshop. Unfortunately, it will happen again. I'd like to use this forum to post a little bit more about a recent project I have undertaken. I have now photographed a series of high resolution images and feel I have generated some good work. I ended up getting a little bit more technical than I had hoped but decided to post anyway to see how other professional photographers might respond.

But this is impossible to follow without the use of various Photoshop tools, which have been enhanced within the Adobe Photoshop CC 2019. When you set the exact focus point of your camera on a subject, you're ready to fire the shutter. When you take a picture, focus is the most important part of the process. To improve that, the industry produces cameras with the ability to set focus points by itself. It, however, requires equipment or complicated presets, which make your experience less enjoyable.
